Someone said that life is what happens to you while you are busy doing other things. In the last decade technology has wholly united the world and made society incredibly faster and connected without precedent.

We ought to recover control on things: being present and completely conscious is one of the challenges of our times. We need to be able to switch to a #slowlife, to live in the moment to be inspired and aware, to enjoy our relationships and the people around us. It was always now.

Those days when you can slowly wake up without the alarm clock ringing. That easy Sunday morning walking barefoot through the kitchen whilst cooking a good meal for your family. The winter days when a hard rain is falling outside and you are inside, chilling on the sofa with your friends.

You know, those days without any pressure, when the only commandment is to #becozy and home is your kingdom.
